"I have been asked to present this tvening to Emmanuel Church this parish house, and I do so at the request of those who have caused it to be erected. The donors of this building gre Mrs. John Stewart, Miss Lacy W. Stewart, Miss Annie C. Stewart, Miss Korma Stewart, Miss E. Hope Stewart, Bisshop and Mrs. C. C. Pinckney. Other contributions also have been received from members of this congregation, and these as a whole will be put into some permanent and appropriate memorial and placed in this building. "In a few short weeks we will celebrate in the church yonder the semi-centennial of its consecration as a place of worship. Fifty years is a long time, and if it has brought sorrow at times, it has brought gladness at others, and surely to-day our hearts are full of gladness and gratitude that cur church has grown so in this stretch of time.

Must Enlarge Borders.

"And now after fifty years we find that we must enlarge our borders, that what was once the luxury of a fond dream is now a real necessity, and that is the parish house, the parish school. "In presenting this building in behalf of the donors I have but one stipulation to make, and that is that it shall be known now, and for all time, as the Joseph Bryan Memorial Parish House. And this is right. Not to perpetuate in the hearts of those who knew him a name which could never be forgotten, but rather that the future generations may ask, What manner of man was this?" and be the better for the asking. And so in these halls, man was this? and be the better for the asking. And so in these halls, where children will ere long bend over book and slate, learning their school-day tasks, who knows but unconsciously they may become better men, better women and better Christians through the contemplation of the life and character of one who wore ever and always 'The white flower of a blameless life.'

JUNE BRIDES HELP REVENUES OF STATE

Matrimonial Fever Spreads, and Gretna Green Parson in Southwest Prepares for Golden Harvest From Happy Hearts.

With the June bride abroad in the land, the duties of clerks of courts and ministers of the gospel are materially increased. A considerable revenue comes to the Commonwealth every year from the issuance of marriage licenses. The figures for the calendar year 190s, which appear in the last annual report of the Auditor of Public Accounts, show that 14,540 licenses were issued. However, this is incomplete, since nine teen counties and one city failed to make the report required by law.

Ministers are generally accused by clerks with laxity in the performance of their duties in this matter. They are required to certify every ceremony performed to the clerk of the court issuing the license, but many of them, it is said, fail to do this.

Of course, with the demand came a supply of those willing to furnish the ceremony. Bitterly assailed as Parson Burroughs is, and nas been, he has always arguments with which to meet his opponents. He suggests that perhaps his specialty deprives the regular ministers of the city of some fees which might otherwise be theirs, and that jealousy plays no small part in the opposition. He also naively opines that since the clopement has progressed to a definite stage, he is conferring a real benefit upon the anxious parents of the young people by seeing them safely married.

Thus generations have occasion to rise up and call him blessed or the reverse Like all successful business men, the parson has not been without competition in his chosen sphere of action. Other ministers have set up establishments designed apparently to rival that of the matrimonial prince, so to speak. While these have undoubtedly affected to some extent his line of trade, there is no doubt that he has at all times gotten the business. The others have been looked upon as imitators, offering to give the upon as imitators, offering to give the public something just as good as that furnished by the man who was first cent Events-Will Have Many Speakers.

With the renomination of Representative Edward W. Saunders at the Fifth District convention, to be held at Rocky Mount, Franklin county, on Thursday of this week, the list of those Democratic candidates in Virginia to be nominated syithout opposition will be closed. There remain the fights in the Second and Third Districts, which are to be settled in the August primaries.

The Fifth District convention is something new in Virginia politics in recent years, barring the Ninth, where the primary plan has always been almost totally disregarded. All nominations, except in certain minor instances, are required by the party law to be made in a primary election, but the Democrats of the Ninth contend, as they have always done, that this system of naming men is disastrous in districts which are close politically. The same is now claimed for the Fifth, which has been uncemfortably close in recent years. Those who oppose the primary plan generally are pointing to the action of the Fifth District committee in calling the convention as an indication of a turning away from primaries.

The anticipation that something will break loose in the Barringer-Priddy fight has a good deal to do with the auxiety to be present.

No word has come from either side as to the plans of procedure to-morrow. There has been much conjecture, but both sides have evidently preferred to reserve fire. Certain it is that some effort was made by Lawrence Priddy to secure proxies for use in the general alumni meeting. It is not known whether these requests were general or confined only to a few personal friends.

STUDENTS ARE TOLD TO MAKE LIFE COUNT

and Alumni Dinner To-Morrow.

The baccalaureate sermon on the occasion of the commencement exercises of Richmond College, was delivered last night by Rev. C. O. S. Wallace, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist Church of Baitimore. The College chapel was filled despite the inclement weather.

For the first time in the history of the college the students, faculty and trustees appeared in the chapel in cap and gown. The baccalaureate sermon and commencement day are of equal dignity as academic events. Therefore, the official participants wore their ceremonial robes. The royal purple of the doctors of divinity minigled with the blue and white and the scarlet of the bachelors and masters and others.

Although former chancellor of an institution of learning, Dr. Wallace said that he came as a minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ. He was introduced by President Boatwright, who said that Dr. Wallace was loved by Richmond people, and that Richmond College was fortunate in having such a distinguished man on that occasion.

Taking as his text the words of the Alumnt Society a number of speeches will be of interest to the distance of the Alumnt Society a number of speeches will be doctors of divinity and trustees appeared in the chapel in and so, more of reminiscence, some of prophecy, as well as other subjects. Taking as his text the words of the Apostle Paul, "To live is Christ; to die is gain." Dr. Wallace exhorted the young men and women graduates to live as the Master would have them. He said that "to work is good, but to live is better."

The speaker, speaking from age and experience, explained that the young man and woman had only begun to enter into the duties and responsibilities of manhood and womanhood when they leave college.

Urged Them to Work.

In advising the youthful students to not only work, but to live; live for a purpose, Dr. Wallace said that they were like an arrow shot from the bow-

According to the speaker's theory, to be a success in life, a man or woman should not set Christ up as a goal to reach at some future time, but they to reach at some future time, but they should live for Christ dally. Take up the cross of life and hear it unto the end. Dr. Wallace said the life physical, the life intellectual and the life spiritual are the goals for the man or woman who desires to be worth while. No one is complete without the other. "Two brutes are now training for a fight; one black and the other white. When these two enter the ring on July 4 they will be almost physical perfection. Neither would be expected to say to live is Christ." They lack the spiritual life," said Dr. Wallace.
